Leadership Simulation

What does leadership mean to you?

Can someone be a leader without holding a formal title?
Why or why not?

Leadership is...

The process of influencing a group to achieve goals

..an influence relationship among leaders and followers who intend real changes that reflect their shared purposes
(Rost, 1998)

...all about getting people to work together to make things happen that might otherwise not occur or prevent things from happening that ordinarily would take place
(Rosenbach & Taylor, 1993)

If you had to describe a leader in just three words, what would they be?

Which one describes a leader?

Authority

Influence

Control

Empowerment

Directing

Developing

Managing Work

Leading People

Position

Purpose

Is a good manager makes someone a good leader?

Manager vs Leader

Planning, controlling, and putting appropriate structures and systems in place

Manager

Anticipating & coping with change, adopting a visionary stance

Leader

John Kotter (1990, What do leaders really do? Harvard Business Review, 68, 103-111.)

The Key Elements

Influence

Primarily a process of influencing actions or attitudes of group members. Influence usually non-coercive (i.e., not dictators)

Goal-directed

Influence is for a purpose; to attain defined group or organisational goals

Follower

Leaders only exist in relation to followers

The Framework of Authentic Leadership

George, B., & Sims, P. 2007. True North: Discover Your Authentic Leadership

The Six Leadership Style

Leadership Style	Primary Focus	Motto
Coercive (Commanding)	Immediate compliance	"Do what I tell you:
Visionary (Authoritative)	Direction & purpose	"Come with me"
Affiliative	Relationship & trust	"People come first"
Democratic	Participation	"What do you think?"
Pacesetting	High performance	"Do as I do, now"
Coaching	Long-term development	"Try this"

Goleman, Daniel. 1995. Working with Emotional Intelligence

"Great leaders don't use one leadership style. They know when to adapt."

Leadership Style: Coercive Leadership

The leader expects immediate compliance and makes decisions independently.

The emphasis is on speed, discipline, and control.

- Gives clear instructions
- Makes quick decisions
- Closely monitors execution
- Expects compliance

Characteristic

- Fast decision making
- Effective during emergencies
- Creates stability in crisis

Strength

- Reduce creativity
- Lower motivation
- Create dependency

Risk (if overuse)

- Crisis management
- Safety issues
- Compliance violations
- Urgent operational decisions

Best use when

“A network outage affects thousands of customers.”

There is no time for discussion because restoring the service is the top priority.

Example

The Coercive* Leader

Gordon Ramsay

Professor Severus Snape

Miranda Priestly

*These examples are not intended to label these figures with only one leadership style

Leadership Style: Visionary Leadership

The leader provides a clear vision and inspires people toward a shared goal.

- Communicates purpose
- Inspires commitment
- Aligns people around a vision
- Encourages innovation

Characteristic

- Builds engagement
- Creates alignment
- Motivates teams during change

Strength

Without execution, vision becomes only inspiration.

Risk (if overuse)

- Organizational change
- New business strategy
- Team lacks direction
- Transformation initiatives

Best use when

The company is launching a new digital service.

The manager explain why it matters. So they understand why their work matters.

Example

The Visionary* Leader

Steve Jobs

Albus Dumbledore

Nadiem Makarim

*These examples are not intended to label these figures with only one leadership style

Leadership Style: Affiliative Leadership

The leader prioritizes relationships, trust, and emotional well-being.

- Appreciates employees
- Builds harmony
- Resolves conflict
- Creates psychological safety

Characteristic

- Builds loyalty
- Improves engagement
- Strengthens teamwork

Strength

- Difficult conversations are avoided.
- Poor performance is tolerated.
- Accountability decreases.

Risk (if overuse)

- Team morale is low
- Conflict exists
- After organizational restructuring
- Burnout situations

Best use when

After a demanding project, the leader focuses on recognizing the team's efforts and rebuilding morale before assigning the next challenge.

Example

The Affiliative* Leader

Ganjar Pranowo

Mufasa

Carlo Ancelotti

*These examples are not intended to label these figures with only one leadership style

Leadership Style: Democratic Leadership

The leader actively involves team members in decision making.

- Encourages discussion
- Seeks different opinions
- Builds consensus
- Values participation

Characteristic

- Higher ownership
- Better decision quality
- More innovation

Strength

- Solving complex problems
- Team has experienced members
- Innovation projects
- Continuous improvement

Best use when

- Decision making becomes slow.
- Endless discussions.
- Lack of clarity if consensus is difficult.

Risk (if overuse)

“Customer complaints about slow response times are increasing.”

The team discuss before deciding on the best solution.

Example

The Democratic* Leader

Anies Baswedan

King T'challa

Nelson Mandela

*These examples are not intended to label these figures with only one leadership style

Leadership Style: Pacesetting Leadership

The leader sets very high performance standards and leads by example.

- High expectations
- Fast pace
- Performance-oriented
- Self-driven

Characteristic

- Delivers quick results
- Raises performance standards
- Effective with highly skilled teams

Strength

- Highly competent teams
- Short deadlines
- High-performance culture

Best use when

- Team burnout
- Reduced learning opportunities
- Micromanagement

Risk (if overuse)

"The team has only one week to prepare a new product launch."

The manager works alongside the team, checks every detail, and expects everyone to maintain the same level of quality and speed.

Example

The Pacesetter* Leader

*These examples are not intended to label these figures with only one leadership style

Leadership Style: Coaching Leadership

The leader focuses on developing people's long-term capabilities rather than simply solving today's problems.

- Asks questions
- Gives developmental feedback
- Delegates learning opportunities
- Supports growth

Characteristic

- Develops future leaders
- Increases engagement
- Improves capability

Strength

- Requires time
- Less effective during emergencies
- Needs employee willingness to learn

Risk (if overuse)

- Talent development
- Succession planning
- Performance improvement
- Career conversations

Best use when

Instead of giving the answer, the manager asks:

"What options have you considered?"

Example

The Coaching* Leader

Susi Pudjiastuti

Master Shifu

Phil Jackson

*These examples are not intended to label these figures with only one leadership style

The Coaching* Leader

What's your dominant style?
Which style do you rarely use?

Why Communication Matters

- Communication is the backbone of collaboration, decision-making, and leadership.

Have you ever heard about active listening?

Can anyone explain...

Did you notice the difference between Listen and Hear in the fundamental?

Have you really listened at work?
Have you really heard?

Listen ≠ hear

Active Listening

Active listening means noticing both words and body language so you can respond to the real message.

Most people do not listen with the intent to understand.
Most people listen with the intent to reply.

What is Active Listening?

Active listening is the skill of fully focusing on the speaker in order to understand their message, both the words they say and the meaning behind them.

It involves paying attention, showing interest, responding appropriately, and confirming understanding, rather than simply waiting for your turn to talk.

Listen vs Hear

Intentional → you choose to focus on the sound

Active → requires attention, concentration, and engagement

Mental process → your brain works to understand the message

Example: You listen when someone is explaining an important task.

Automatic → your ears pick up sound without effort

Passive → happens even if you're not paying attention

Physical process → sound enters your ears

Example: You hear people talking in the background.

Listen actively

Reduces Mistakes, Conflicts & Misunderstandings

Impact of Active Listening

KEY INSIGHTS

60% workplace mistakes come from poor communication, but active listening can cut them by 40%.

Active listening boosts conflict resolution by about 42% and calms 55% more disputes.

3 in 4 communication problems come from misunderstandings, and active listening clears them up.

Active Listening

CASE STUDY: Let's imagine a team member, Rina, is explaining a challenge with a project deadline

Step	What it means	Example
Receive	Pay full attention to the speaker—tune in both verbally and non-verbally.	You look at Rina, pause your task, nod when she speaks, giving her your full attention.
Appreciate	Convey acknowledgment and empathy through small verbal (like “uh-huh”) or nonverbal cues (like nodding/slightly smiling).	You say, “ I hear you’re really stretched. I understand, ” and offer a sympathetic nod.
Summarize	Reflect back what you’ve heard using your own words (e.g., “So what I’m hearing is…”).	You respond, “ So you’re finding the current timeline too tight, especially given the resource constraints in code reviews—do I have that right? ”
Ask	Pose follow-up or clarifying questions after summarizing (e.g., “Can you elaborate on…”).	You follow up with, “ Would it help if we shifted some tasks or extended the review period to alleviate the pressure? ”

4. 96% of employees believe showing empathy is an important way to advance employee retention

Empathy is an essential part of emotional intelligence, the ability to identify and manage one's own emotions and be mindful of the emotions of others. Engagement and empathy are inextricably linked, as employees are unlikely to feel truly respected and empowered in an organization that does not show empathy. A recent report on workplace empathy reveals mixed results in this area. Employees are nearly unanimous in agreeing on the importance of empathy—yet 92% feel empathy remains undervalued. Moreover, while 92% of CEOs feel their organization is empathetic, only 50% of their employees say their CEO is empathetic. Empathy must start at the top which is one reason why teaching emotional intelligence figures so prominently in my work as an executive coach. Empathy may be a soft skill, but it pays off in improved business outcomes.

Empathy, humility, and self-awareness

The impact example at work

Better Understanding of Instructions

Empathetic managers ask, "What do you need to hit this deadline?" instead of just giving orders, cutting costly mix-ups.

Trust & Psychological Safety

When managers show they understand, employees speak up early, cutting mistakes.

Improved Collaboration & Retention

Empathetic managers keep teams and young workers from quitting by making everyone feel respected.

Increased Employee Engagement

Employees who feel heard are nearly five times more engaged and tie their work to company goals.

Reduced Stress & Conflict

Empathy turns stressful demands into supported teamwork, cutting resistance and conflict.

Fortune 500 Adoption Rates

How 360 Feedback Runs

The 360 Feedback Process

Six potential steps to building a 360 program in your org.

Best Practice: Don't forget to leverage both close-ended and open-ended questions in your 360 feedback process with respondents.

Things to Consider (1)

Step	What it means
Define Clear Objectives	First, clarify whether the 360° feedback is intended for developmental growth , performance evaluation, leadership coaching, or all three. Developmental purposes typically yield higher trust and openness
Pilot Before Full Rollout	Start with a small, trusted group or department to identify roadblocks, test logistics, and build confidence in the process
Safeguard Anonymity and Confidentiality	Ensure responses can't be traced back to raters by: • Aggregating feedback (minimum of 3–5 raters per category), • Clearly communicating that feedback is protected and used for development only.
Select the Right Participants	Include a diverse mix : managers, peers, direct reports, and possibly external stakeholders (clients or vendors) to gather well-rounded insights

Things to Consider (2)

Step	What it means
Design a Structured, Purposeful Survey	• Use clear, actionable questions targeting competencies like leadership, communication, teamwork. • Combine quantitative ratings with open-ended qualitative questions for richer insights.
Choose Appropriate Software Tools	Select a platform that ensures: Anonymity, Data security, Customization, Ease of use, and Integration with existing HR systems
Train Everyone—Raters & Ratee	Host workshops that cover: • How to give constructive, bias-aware feedback, • How to receive feedback openly, and • The confidential nature of the process
Launch with Strategic Communication	• Clearly explain the why, how, and when. • Provide instructions, timelines, and support contacts. • Reassure participants about confidentiality and encourage participation.

Step	What it means
Collect Insights & Analyze Thoughtfully	• Use the chosen software to aggregate and identify trends. • Avoid comparing employees; focus on individual strengths and areas for growth.
Debrief & Collaborate on Action Plans	Schedule one-on-one review sessions: • Discuss findings constructively, • Encourage reflection, • Co-create SMART goals (Specific, Measurable, Achievable, Relevant, Time-bound), and • Offer coaching or training as needed
Monitor Progress & Iterate	• Follow up regularly to track development, • Celebrate wins, • Reassess periodically (e.g., annually), and • Adjust the process based on feedback and outcomes.

Key Pitfalls in Misapplied 360-degree Feedback

Pitfall	Consequence
Weaponized anonymity	Fear-based culture and retaliation, suppressed voice
Strategic gaming	Feedback loses authenticity and favoritism grows
No clear purpose or follow-up	Feedback feels meaningless and no growth or accountability
Trust breakdown	Lower morale, increased stress, relational damage
Poor tool design & training	Misunderstanding, biased or vague feedback, frustration
