

How to Win Friends and Influence People

Webinar Session

Jakarta, 28 Okt 2025

Deck Presentation | 2025

CONFIDENTIAL FOR LIMITED PARTIES Please do not distribute this presentation or any component of this presentation to any 3rd party without written consent.

Professional Profile

- Experienced People Development Professional with 7+ years in talent management, career consulting, coaching, and training.
- Accumulated 550+ hours of coaching, training, and consulting experience, assisting 250+ brands across academic, business, government, community, and media sectors.
- Coach Specialist at RevoU, Rumah Siap Kerja (ex), and several reputable brands, conducting 750+ coaching sessions with a consistent 4.9/5 feedback rating.
- Public Speaker & Facilitator for 100+ career development, employability, and personal growth webinars/workshops, reaching over 50,000 participants.
- Recognized as LinkedIn Power Profile 2018.
- Certified in Coaching, Public Speaking, and Training, with awards from Temasek Foundation, Ashoka, U.S. Department of State, Asia Foundation, etc.

Irvandias Sanjaya, S.Psi., CPC., CT.

Founder at Kerja Cer-Dias | Coach |
Trainer | Consultant | Sportscaster |
Content Creator @Kerjacerdias

Deck Presentation | 2025

CONFIDENTIAL FOR LIMITED PARTIES Please do not distribute this presentation or any component of this presentation to any 3rd party without written consent.

Be Ready For The Session

To obtain an optimum learning result, let's follow these ground rules!

Raise Hand if there's concern/questions
along the way

Actively participate
throughout the session
(reciprocal approach)

Focused during session to ensure the learning journey landed in safe
and sound experience

Table of Contents

01 Why Carnegie's Advice Matters (still)

02 Essentials of Engagement

03 Six Ways to Make a Lasting Impression

04 How to Merit and Maintain Others' Trust

05 How to Lead Change Without Resistance

Part 1

Why Carnegie's Advice Still Matters

Why it matters now (in digital age)

Ultra-fast, borderless communication raises the odds of being misunderstood

So precision and intent are critical foundations for any message or strategy

Bupati Buton Dilaporkan Hilang, Alvin Klarifikasi: Saya Dinas 20 Hari di Jakarta

Redaksi | 24 September 2025 06:03 WIB
Daerah Politik

<https://terkininews.com/2025/09/24/Bupati-Buton-Dilaporkan-Hilang-Alvin-Klarifikasi-Saya-Dinas-20-Hari-di-Jakarta.html>

Kompas.com / News / Megapolitan

Klarifikasi Wali Kota Tangsel Usai Anggaran Pemkot Dikritik Leony

<https://megapolitan.kompas.com/read/2025/09/24/08201411/klarifikasi-wali-kota-tangsel-usai-anggaran-pemkot-dikritik-leony>

Kompas.com / Bola / Timnas Indonesia

Pejabat FIFA Klarifikasi Pernyataan Palsu soal Menpora dan Ketum PSSI Erick Thohir

<https://bola.kompas.com/read/2025/09/23/22532298/pejabat-fifa-klarifikasi-pernyataan-palsu-soal-menpora-dan-ketum-pssi-erick>

Selflessness beats self-promotion

In a culture of viral gimmicks, lasting influence comes from sincere interest in others.
Carnegie: be more interested in people than in getting them interested in you

<https://youtu.be/CvPtDd3B3PE?si=eFsZvt9xyDdypDn4>

<https://www.liputan6.com/hot/read/4246821/viral-influencer-asal-surabaya-bagikan-paket-sembako-dan-uang-tunai>

<https://www.dompethdhuafa.org/temu-virtual-influencer-dompeth-dhuafa-apresiasi-dedikasi-kemanusiaan/>

Meaning over media

Don't measure success by platforms or follower counts; prioritize meaning in every message—people notice and remember when you consistently leave them better.

Simple helpful message
= 2.9M views

<https://www.youtube.com/@BeastPhilanthropy/videos>

<https://youtu.be/q44kByZmKDs?si=olaRyF4Te1B7LkwK>

Part 1

Essentials of Engagement

Bury Your Boomerangs

Affirm What's Good

Connect with Core Desires

1.1 Bury Your Boomerangs: Core Principle

We all communicate on a spectrum—from tearing down to building up.

Carnegie's succinct rule is "don't criticize, condemn, or complain."

Why this matters more now.

Because public access makes every misstep searchable and permanent: online rants now bring fines and even firings

Examples:

- a $40,000 Facebook defamation case; a Premier League player fined for a mocking tweet
- numerous Facebook posts costing people their jobs

The psychology underneath.

Criticism provokes self-protection: people defend, deflect, and deny—so your point gets filtered through skepticism. Hence the chapter's metaphor: critical comments act like invisible boomerangs—they come back at the speaker.

Tearing down

Building up

1.1 Bury Your Boomerangs: Core Principle

We all communicate on a spectrum—from tearing down to building up.

Carnegie's succinct rule is "don't criticize, condemn, or complain."

Why this matters more now.

Because public access makes every misstep searchable and permanent: online rants now bring fines and even firings

Examples:

- a $40,000 Facebook defamation case; a Premier League player fined for a mocking tweet
- numerous Facebook posts costing people their jobs

Book Adopted

The psychology underneath.

Criticism provokes self-protection: people defend, deflect, and deny—so your point gets filtered through skepticism. Hence the chapter's metaphor: critical comments act like invisible boomerangs—they come back at the speaker.

"Thanks for surfacing the checkout issue so fast. We've paused the variant and restored the stable build. I'll post a 5-minute readout at 16:00 WIB with what happened and the fix. Appreciate everyone who jumped in—let's keep customer impact near zero while we tidy up."

1.1 Bury Your Boomerangs: Carnegie's Solution

Encouragement

Shift from exposé/objection to encouragement/exhortation; don't use public channels to grind axes.

Resist bad-mouthing

Resist bad-mouthing as a differentiation strategy; today's rival may be tomorrow's collaborator.

Remove your agenda

Remove your agenda and add value; recipients don't want your gripes, they want usefulness.

Calm down before replying

Calm down before replying; the first five minutes are the most volatile. Avoid permanent records of temporary moods.

1.2 Affirm What's Good: What It Means

Carnegie reframes influence as a three-part habit:

Habit	Meaning	Example Social campaign under pressure
Value first	Recognize a person's worth	"Maya, you have a strong instinct for audience tone and timing."
Appreciation second	Acknowledge what's working	"Your quick copy tweak on the carousel cut negative comments in half."
Encouragement third	Speak to what's possible next	"Run that approach on the Q&A reels today; draft three hooks and I'll approve within 15 minutes."

Focus especially on "lost sheep":

Effective leaders invest attention in the one who's drifting, not to scold but to restore. Affirmation is attention with a purpose: it sees the kernel of good and calls it forward.

1.3 Connect with Core Desires: Core idea

Lasting influence begins when you locate and speak to the other person's eager want—the desire beneath the surface

Jobs's "digital hub" vision resonated because it promised a life people already wanted—seamless control of their digital world—so the market followed.

Two big lessons:

1. Influence needs intuition more than intellect—read what's underneath.
2. Influence works best with a gentle hand ("Gently in manner, strong in deed").

Dialogue > monologue: Stop "arguing" (pitching your case); start conversation to discover needs. Real dialogue builds trust and catches fire.

1.3 Connect with Core Desires: Core idea

Lasting influence begins when you locate and speak to the other person's eager want—the desire beneath the surface

Jobs's "digital hub" vision resonated because it promised a life people already wanted—seamless control of their digital

Influence accelerates the moment you stop telling people what they should want and start aligning with what they do want.

manner, strong in deed").

Dialogue > monologue: Stop "arguing" (pitching your case); start conversation to discover needs. Real dialogue builds trust and catches fire.

A brand manager wants to “subtweet” a competitor’s blunder to win points. What should she do?

A. Do it—social snark signals confidence.

B. Ignore it and post a playful meme.

C. Skip the jab; publish useful guidance that helps customers avoid that failure.

A brand manager wants to “subtweet” a competitor’s blunder to win points. What should she do?

A. Do it—social snark signals confidence.

B. Ignore it and post a playful meme.

C. Skip the jab; publish useful guidance that helps customers avoid that failure.

👉 Publicly mocking a competitor (“subtweeting”) violates Carnegie’s “don’t criticize, condemn, or complain” and often boomerangs on your brand. Publishing useful guidance adds value, builds e 10 points ⭐ tions marketing as a helpful authority—su viral snark.

Part 2

Six Ways to Make a Lasting Impression

Take Interest in Others' Interests

Smile

And 4 Others...

2.1 Take Interest in Others' Interests

It endures because people are naturally self-interested; when you regularly step outside yourself, you stand out, earn trust, and your influence rises with that trust.

Motive check

Influence that lasts offers mutual benefit, not one-way self-promotion. Audiences quickly see through gimmicks; they gravitate to messages—and messengers—that serve them, too.

Not self-erasure

The point isn't "replace your interests," but incorporate others' interests into your own so both are served. That's the "secret" to applying the principle.

Human-nature anchor

A self-centered life creates constant interpersonal difficulty; humility precedes durable effectiveness with people.

2.1 Take Interest in Others' Interests

It endures because people are naturally self-interested; when you regularly step outside yourself, you stand out, earn trust, and your influence rises with that trust.

Consistently centering what matters to them (without losing yourself) creates remembered interactions, rising trust, and enduring influence.

2.2 Smile

A smile (or its digital equivalent) clarifies intent and lowers friction. Emojis/emoticons can help in casual exchanges, but they're rarely appropriate for formal stakeholders.

In non-face-to-face channels, your smile is your voice and wording. Write emails whose “corners of the mouth” turn up: begin and end on a positive note; if you can’t find a reason to be positive, wait before you write.

Subject: Conversion rate up 11% on the September campaign—next step

Hi Ms. Tan,

Great news: last week’s landing-page changes moved sitewide conversion from 3.8% to 4.2%. Your suggestion to surface the 30-day free exchange at checkout helped—abandonment dropped noticeably. Next, we’ll roll out Variant B at 16:00 WIB today and watch the 24-hour lift. I’ll send a one-page readout tomorrow.

Warm regards,
Alex

Subject: Thank you for flagging this—fixed and credited

Hi Daniel,

I’m sorry for the frustration with the duplicate invoice. We’ve corrected the billing entry and issued a Rp150.000 credit to your account. Thanks for giving us the chance to make it right. If you see anything else, reply here and I’ll jump on it.

Best,
Maya

2.3 Reign with Names

Names = Identity & Status

Carnegie:

someone's name is "the sweetest and most important sound" to them—still holds. Using first names appropriately can collapse distance and create trust

Digital age = name economy

Social platforms have turned names into brands: followers, endorsements, and contracts accrue to recognizable names.

Your "household name" can be monetized—so handling others' names with care matters more than ever.

Which approach best balances warmth with non-creepiness?

A. "Iggy, we saw you viewed 7 pricing pages at 2:14 AM."

B. "Iggy, ideas from teams like yours that cut onboarding time."

C. "FIRSTNAME, open this now!!!"

Which approach best balances warmth with non-creepiness?

A. "Iggy, we saw you viewed 7 pricing pages at 2:14 AM."

B. "Iggy, ideas from teams like yours that cut onboarding time."

C. "FIRSTNAME, open this now!!!"

👉 it uses the person's name to offer relevant value ("ideas from teams like yours") without creeping on their behavior. A feels invasive (surveillance), and C is shouty/pleading.

10 points

2.4 Listen Longer

Listening is the practical form of being more interested in others than in being interesting yourself.

CASE STUDY: Let's imagine a team member, Rina, is explaining a challenge with a project deadline

Step	What it means	Example
Receive	Pay full attention to the speaker—tune in both verbally and non-verbally.	You look at Rina, pause your task, nod when she speaks, giving her your full attention.
Appreciate	Convey acknowledgment and empathy through small verbal (like “uh-huh”) or nonverbal cues (like nodding/slightly smiling).	You say, “I hear you’re really stretched, I understand,” and offer a sympathetic nod.
Summarize	Reflect back what you’ve heard using your own words (e.g., “So what I’m hearing is...”).	You respond, “So you’re finding the current timeline too tight, especially given the resource constraints in code reviews—do I have that right?”
Ask	Pose follow-up or clarifying questions after summarizing (e.g., “Can you elaborate on...”).	You follow up with, “Would it help if we shifted some tasks or extended the review period to alleviate the pressure?”

Payoff: When people feel heard, trust and willingness to collaborate rise; meaningful interactions compound your influence and even your effectiveness/earning power.

2.5 Discuss What Matters to Them

If you want to matter to people, talk about what matters to them—otherwise your message lands on “deaf (or dull) ears.”

Discussing their interests earns attention, lowers resistance, and makes your message memorable; assumption-driven messaging does the opposite.

Result of Not Talking w/ Market

From this

Arc Browser, a new entrant, has begun gaining traction in design and creative communities, with a 0.2% global share.

<https://sqmagazine.co.uk/browser-statistics/>

To this (in the same year 2025)

Arc Browser has been discontinued, but the company's building a new browser: Dia

<https://www.ghacks.net/2025/05/27/arc-browser-has-been-discontinued-but-the-companys-building-a-new-browser-dia/>

2.5 Discuss What Matters to Them

If you want to matter to
"deaf (or dull) ears."

Market Reaction?

message lands on

Aashrit Garg @aashrit_garg

@browsercompany you basically got me hooked on Arc Browser and then abandoned it.

All the features that I loved are now slowly losing relevance cause yes I need AI as well in my browser.

If I'm going back into the market might as well look at @comet cause don't want to get hooked again just to be abandoned.

Why innovate with Spaces, Profiles and Sidebar when you just leave it?

Also it's not that people didn't like it! They did cause I see lot of people are like me who just love Arc and still won't shift!

1:41 PM · Sep 24, 2025 · 36 Views

nizzy @nizzyabi

the browser sucks and every knew it was a dumb decision to ditch arc.

arc was literally perfect

Peer Richelsen — oss/acc @peer_richelsen

I accept @theco's apology

I myself have recommended Arc to everyone I know and I'm leaving

I'm leaving very sad and wish @browsercompany would open source it

youtube.com

I'm Finally Moving On (I have a new browser)

My journey with Arc was... weird. If you followed me here, I'm sorry, I hope this helps. Thank you Comet for sponsoring!

11:13 PM · Jan 30, 2025 · 170.4K Views

52 13 111 216

Read 52 replies

2.5 Discuss What Matters to Them

If you want to matter to people, talk about what matters to them—otherwise your message lands on “deaf (or dull) ears.”

Discussing their interests earns attention, lowers resistance, and makes your message memorable; assumption-driven messaging does the opposite.

Example to Teammates

To Product Team

“Your north star is time-to-first-value. Our lifecycle email can nudge the first data import in under 5 minutes—if we lead with a 3-step mini-tour, would that align with your week-2 goal?”

To HR Team

“Your focus is candidate NPS. Can we send a short ‘what to expect’ note and sample brief 24 hours before portfolio interviews? Lowering anxiety should improve fairness and signal our bar.”

2.6 Leave Others a Little Better

No neutral exchanges: Every message—tweet, post, email, call—adds or subtracts. Aim for net-positive accumulation.

Altruism beats impression-making

In a culture of self-promotion, prioritizing others sets you apart and earns durable influence.

Golden Rule, modern medium

Ancient reciprocity still rules: do for others what you'd want done for you—now across fast, public channels where fallout is swift.

Small details, big compounding

Courtesy in “everyday” messages (updates, replies, comments) is where influence is won repeatedly.

Practical lens

Before sending, ask: “Does this help, clarify, appreciate, or connect?”—if yes, you’re leaving them better. The standard applies to each interaction, not just landmark moments.

A customer posts a long, multi-reply thread about a broken feature. What's the best first move?

A. Fire off a standard apology and link to status page.

B. Read the entire thread, reflect back the specifics, and move to DM with a short list of clarifying questions.

C. Hide the thread and email them privately.

A customer posts a long, multi-reply thread about a broken feature. What's the best first move?

A. Fire off a standard apology and link to status page.

B. Read the entire thread, reflect back the specifics, and move to DM with a short list of clarifying questions.

C. Hide the thread and email them privately.

👉 B is right because it listens longer: you read the whole thread, reflect specifics (showing you heard), then move to DM for details—de-escalating while keeping a re

10 points

Part 3

How to Merit and Maintain Others' Trust

Avoid Arguments

Never Say, "You're Wrong"

And 8 Others...

3.1 Avoid Arguments

Why arguments fail: They don't change minds; they entrench them.

RELATIONSHIPS

Arguing Is Normal—Right? Actually, No.

Six common sources of arguments and how to prevent them.

Posted May 23, 2025 | Reviewed by Tyler Woods

<https://www.psychologytoday.com/us/blog/fixing-families/202505/arguing-is-normal-right-actually-no>

Key points

- Depending on their backgrounds, couples vary in their tolerance for arguments.
- Apart from those "perfect-storm" arguments where everyone is simply stressed, arguments needn't be the norm.
- To avoid arguments, find the cause: hot tempers, relationship imbalance, unresolved problems of the past.

<https://www.quora.com/What-is-the-psychological-reason-behind-people-continuing-arguments-even-after-they-know-they-are-wrong>

3.1 Avoid Arguments

Why arguments fail: They don't change minds; they entrench them.

When you feel an argument coming on, trade the urge to be right for the chance to stay influential—connect first, and keep the door open.

Key points

- Depending on their backgrounds, couples vary in their tolerance for arguments.
- Apart from those "perfect-storm" arguments where everyone is simply stressed, arguments needn't be the norm.
- To avoid arguments, find the cause: hot tempers, relationship imbalance, unresolved problems of the past.

<https://www.quora.com/What-is-the-psychological-reason-behind-people-continuing-arguments-even-after-they-know-they-are-wrong>

3.2 Never Say, “You’re Wrong”

The smartest answers usually live outside any single person’s view; opening with “you’re wrong” guarantees a bad outcome and shuts down meaningful collaboration.

Think in nuance, not absolutes

Most disagreements are small cracks, not chasms; real friendships (and teams) can carry honest differences without rupture.

Adopt a collaborative stance

Enter talks with a blank slate—assume you don’t have every fact, and resist the reflex to prove yourself. Emptying your mind of “I already know” creates room for shared solutions.

Operate
interdependen tly

Better results come when your insight is compounded with others’—not when one person “trumps” another.

3.3 Admit Faults Quickly and Emphatically

Negative news spreads faster than ever; the way to limit damage is to come clean quickly and convincingly so you—not rumor—set the narrative.

If you dodge, you still “broadcast.” Vague, aloof responses read as “I just want my old life back,” which hardens resentment and prolongs the fallout.

Example of Good Public Apology

Public Reaction is Positive

3.3 Admit Faults Quickly and Emphatically

Negative news spreads faster than ever; the way to limit damage is to come clean quickly and convincingly so you—not rumor—set the narrative.

If you dodge, you still “broadcast.” Vague, aloof responses read as “I just want my old life back,” which hardens resentment and prolongs the fallout.

Example of Good Apology

“Hey Joel—apologies for my tone earlier. I was frustrated and I let it show. That’s on me. I’ve deleted my comment. Thanks for your patience; next time I’ll take it to DM or a call.”

“Quick correction from me: trial-to-paid is 27%, not 32%. I misread the cohort. Deck + notes updated; thanks for catching it. I’ll run numbers with RevOps before quoting externally.”

A prospect says, "Your pricing model punishes small teams." Best reply?

A. "That's simply false—industry standard."

B. "Our CFO chose this; it's non-negotiable."

C. "I hear the concern. Small teams value flexibility—can I share how pay-as-you-grow works and where it doesn't?"

A prospect says, "Your pricing model punishes small teams." Best reply?

A. "That's simply false—industry standard."

B. "Our CFO chose this; it's non-negotiable."

C. "I hear the concern. Small teams value flexibility—can I share how pay-as-you-grow works and where it doesn't?"

👉 C is correct because it acknowledges the prospect's concern and invites a nuanced, solution-focused discussion—avoiding the "you're wrong" trigger while exploring where it works (and doesn't)

10 points

3.4 Begin in a Friendly Way

Use warmth first, especially when upset

Before firing off an angry message, begin courteous, ask about the other person, or build a small bridge—your odds of a positive result rise dramatically.

Pick the right medium

Short texts/chats lack tone; if rapport matters, switch to a channel that carries warmth (call, video, in-person) and recreate the effect of a smile and handshake.

Adopt the “dinner table” mindset

Treat each interaction as if you’ll meet the person at their mother’s dinner table—manners and authenticity win in the social era.

Accountability is on the messenger

Don’t chase reactions with gimmicks; lead with genuine friendliness and substance rather than shock.

3.5 Access Affinity

Affinity now precedes hello

Online “like/follow/share” creates multiple threads of commonality before first contact; we naturally grant more attention and influence to those we feel in sync with.

Law of Magnetism

You draw people with qualities you embody and pursue—so cultivate the traits and communities you hope to attract.

Why it matters for influence

Because affinity accelerates rapport, it can be a “tremendous boost” to forming relationships where influence can grow—provided the outreach is genuine and meaningful, not performative.

Practical spirit

Spot authentic overlaps (interests, groups, goals), approach with friendliness, and invest in the relationship—affinity is a starting point, not a shortcut.

3.6 Surrender the Credit

"Claiming the credit will never win you friends" and "diminishes your influence" quicker than almost anything.

The worst leader trait to followers is taking credit when things go well and blaming others when they don't—an "it's-all-about-me" signal that sends people running.

Solution: Credit Sharing

Why It Works

It's a "magical multiplier"—powered by sincere gratitude, not manipulation. Fear is what makes people hoard credit; generosity is what keeps teams alive

Reciprocity & memory

In healthy relationships, reciprocity follows naturally. In the long run, people remember magnanimity—paradoxically, the more you surrender credit, the more memorable you become.

A debate is spiraling. What shows friendly leadership?

A. Move to a quick call, open with appreciation for both views, then summarize a shared path back in-channel.

B. Post a sarcastic GIF to lighten the mood.

C. Mute the thread and hope it dies.

A debate is spiraling. What shows friendly leadership?

A. Move to a quick call, open with appreciation for both views, then summarize a shared path back in-channel.

B. Post a sarcastic GIF to lighten the mood.

C. Mute the thread and hope it dies.

👉 A is correct because it begins in a friendly way and uses a richer channel (call) to defuse tone issues, appreciate both views, align, then posts a calm summary.

10 points

3.7 Engage with Empathy

Empathy Mapping

Empathy Map

Empathy Mapping

Steps	What it means	Examples
Define the User / Employee	Start with who you are mapping.	"Frontline customer service staff handling high call volumes."
What They Say	Capture direct quotes or common phrases.	"I don't have enough time to handle all these requests."
What They Think	Explore internal thoughts they may not say out loud.	"I'm worried I'll make mistakes if I rush."
What They Feel	Note emotions employees experience during tasks.	Stressed when juggling deadlines, proud when customers are satisfied.

Empathy Mapping

Step	What it means	Example
What They Do	Observe behaviors and actions.	Staying late to finish reports, double-checking customer data.
Pains	Frustrations, blockers, risks.	Unclear instructions, lack of resources, unrealistic deadlines.
Gains	Goals, motivators, success signals.	Recognition from manager, smooth workflows, good team support.

Deck Presentation | 2025

CONFIDENTIAL FOR LIMITED PARTIES Please do not distribute this presentation or any component of this presentation to any 3rd party without written consent.

Another Example Empathy Mapping

CASE STUDY: Imagine you're a manager asking employees to adopt a new software tool

Steps	What it means	Examples
Define the User / Employee	Start with who you are mapping.	My subordinate / my staff below me
What They Say	Capture direct quotes or common phrases.	"This system is confusing."
What They Think	Explore internal thoughts they may not say out loud.	"I'll fall behind if I can't learn it quickly."
What They Feel	Note emotions employees experience during tasks.	Anxious, resistant.

Deck Presentation | 2025

CONFIDENTIAL FOR LIMITED PARTIES Please do not distribute this presentation or any component of this presentation to any 3rd party without written consent.

Another Example Empathy Mapping

CASE STUDY: Imagine you're a manager asking employees to adopt a new software tool

Step	What it means	Example
What They Do	Observe behaviors and actions.	Avoid using the tool, keep relying on old methods.
Pains	Frustrations, blockers, risks.	Fear of failure, lack of training.
Gains	Goals, motivators, success signals.	Wants efficiency, fewer repetitive tasks.

3.8 Appeal to Noble Motives

Digital habits can make us “browse” humans as if they’re objects; influence grows when you recognize inherent dignity and call people to their better selves.

Book Adopted

The “business of humanity.”

During the 2011 Japan tsunami, Amy Jo Martin used social media to mobilize help—reminding that these platforms are first for people to connect, not just for marketers chasing clicks. Audiences responded to the noble appeal.

Brand lesson: When organizations prioritize ratings or spectacle over lives, they erode trust; elevating what’s right strengthens reputation and followership.

3.9 Share Your Journey + 3.10 Throw Down a Challenge

Let others in on your purpose and progress (including the messy middle). When your message is a mission, audiences remember it—and willingly spread it.

Challenge is a tool for trust and growth, not ego or put-downs. “As iron sharpens iron...,” but the goal is sharpening, not wounding

AI Race

Rivalry can accelerate innovation.

<https://artificialanalysis.ai/>

There is a refund request outside of company policy. What do you say?

A. "Policy says no."

B. "I see why that's frustrating. Here's what we can do today, and here's a goodwill option for your situation."

C. "Escalate if you want; result will be the same."

There is a refund request outside of company policy. What do you say?

A. "Policy says no."

B. "I see why that's frustrating. Here's what we can do today, and here's a goodwill option for your situation."

C. "Escalate if you want; result will be the same."

👉 B is correct because it shows empathy and problem-solving—it validates the customer's frustration, offers a concrete remedy now, and adds a

10 points

Part 4

How to Lead Change Without Resistance or Resentment

Begin on a Positive
Note

Acknowledge Your Baggage

And 6 Others...

4.1 Begin on a Positive Note

When you need change from someone, start with something genuinely positive.

Lead with real recognition

Open by acknowledging the person's value or what's working; this sets a constructive tone and makes open communication possible.

Be specific and sincere

Don't do vague flattery. Train yourself to find a truthful positive starting point and show appreciation that resonates with the receiver; great bosses learn how each teammate thinks and acts.

Avoid the "MUM effect"

People soften or hide bad news to evade others' negative emotions. A positive, non-dramatic opener makes it safer to surface problems honestly—preventing rosy "filtered" messages from climbing up the chain.

Model calm, drama-free delivery

Resist promoting drama; leaders who lead with the positive are less likely to be blindsided later.

4.2 Acknowledge Your Baggage

Start tough conversations by naming your own mistakes to the very person affected. It neutralizes rivalry and invites cooperation.

Zenger Folkman's extensive research studies correlating 300,000 people's ratings of more than 35,000 managers with performance outcomes found these dramatic differences between the weakest and strongest leaders:

- 4 - 6 times higher profits
- 6 times higher sales revenues
- 10 - 20 times higher levels of employee engagement
- 3 - 4 times reduction in employees thinking about quitting
- 50% fewer employees that do leave
- Double the satisfaction with pay and job security
- 4 - 5 times more employees "willing to go the extra mile."
- 1.5 times higher customer satisfaction ratings
- Over 3 times safer work environment

What's especially remarkable is how obtainable extraordinary leadership is proving to be. A leader needs to develop just three existing strengths out of sixteen competencies to catapult his or her leadership effectiveness from the 34th to the 80th percentile!

<https://www.slideshare.net/slideshow/the-extraordinary-leader-workshop/16391687>

IMPACT OF PERCEIVED ARROGANCE & HUMILITY ON OVERALL EFFECTIVENESS

<https://zengerfolkman.com/articles/why-humility-is-important-the-7-signs-of-arrogance/>

4.2 Acknowledge Your Baggage

Start tough conversations by naming your own mistakes to the very person affected. It neutralizes rivalry and invites cooperation.

Owning mistakes makes us more humble and it builds trust among colleagues & customers

Zenger Folkman's extensive research studies correlating 300,000 people's ratings of more than 35,000 managers with performance differences

- 4 - 6 times more likely to be promoted
- 6 times more likely to be hired
- 10 - 20% higher customer satisfaction ratings
- 3 - 4 times more likely to be recommended for promotion
- 50% more likely to be recommended for promotion
- Double the number of employees willing to go the extra mile
- 4 - 5 times more employees willing to go the extra mile
- 1.5 times higher customer satisfaction ratings
- Over 3 times safer work environment

What's especially remarkable is how obtainable extraordinary leadership is proving to be. A leader needs to develop just three existing strengths out of sixteen competencies to catapult his or her leadership effectiveness from the 34th to the 80th percentile!

IMPACT OF PERCEIVED ARROGANCE &

<https://www.slideshare.net/slideshow/the-extraordinary-leader-workshop/16391687>

<https://zengerfolkman.com/articles/why-humility-is-important-the-7-signs-of-arrogance/>

4.3 Call Out Mistakes Quietly

Treat errors as isolated and redeemable, not character flaws; address them quietly and move the person back to confidence and strength.

One of Indonesian Work Culture is Face / "Gengsi"

Sensitivity to Public Criticism:
Strongly values teamwork and working together to achieve shared goals.

Public Criticism and makes your team more cynical and makes you lost credibility

4.4 Ask Questions Instead of Giving Direct Orders

Replace commands with curious, specific questions. You'll often get a better answer than the one you had in mind, with far more buy-in.

GOOD LEADERS ASK QUESTIONS INSTEAD OF GIVING ORDERS

Author Image

Guest post by Hamilton Lindley

<https://leadingwithquestions.com/leadership/good-leaders-ask-questions-instead-of-giving-orders/>

CPA is 28% over target. Best leadership move?

A. "Kill all creatives and rebuild from scratch."

B. "Pause spend until further notice."

C. "Which two hypotheses explain the CPA spike, and how would you test them in 48 hours?"

CPA is 28% over target. Best leadership move?

A. "Kill all creatives and rebuild from scratch."

B. "Pause spend until further notice."

C. "Which two hypotheses explain the CPA spike, and how would you test them in 48 hours?"

👉 C is correct because it uses questions to drive ownership and diagnosis—it prompts clear hypotheses and a rapid test plan, which preserves learning and speed. A and B are blunt (nuking or freezing campaigns) without understanding the cause, risking wasted time and morale.

10 points

4.5 Mitigate Fault

Instead of shaming, alleviate the sting—a quiet word, a considerate aside, or shared responsibility that lets the other person keep their dignity. That's how you "let others save face."

Public fault-finding breeds fear of failure, which kills risk-taking, creativity, and voice. Failure is inevitable; leaders who cushion it keep people trying.

Offer grace now, record the lesson for next time—accountability without humiliation. It's a leader's job to help people carry the inner hit of failure and still grow.

4.6 Magnify Improvement

Notice and amplify small wins. Give recognition that's sincere, specific, timely—and often public.

4.7 Give Others a Fine Reputation to Live Up To

Before demanding change, ascribe a worthy identity (reliable, thoughtful, craft-driven) and ask people to act in line with it. It's a reputational "north star" that invites ownership rather than defensiveness.

Skills blossom under encouragement and wither under criticism—so the "fine reputation" is fuel, not fluff.

4.8 Stay Connected on Common Ground

People move with you when they feel you're on the same side. Start from what you already agree on (purpose, outcomes, values), then build from there. Treat disputes as optimization, not opposition.

Lead with the overlap

"We both want a launch we're proud of..." before discussing scope/timing

Use we and "yes-and" language

Expand, don't negate—"Yes, and to protect quality, let's..."

Steelman their point

State their best argument fairly; it signals respect and keeps the door open.

A junior posted wrong promo code for 20 minutes. Best leadership move?

A. "Comment publicly correcting them so "we learn."

B. Fix fast, DM the junior with guidance, then post a neutral correction ("updated code now active") without blame.

C. Delete the post and warn the team in CAPS.

A junior posted wrong promo code for 20 minutes. Best leadership move?

A. "Comment publicly correcting them so "we learn."

B. Fix fast, DM the junior with guidance, then post a neutral correction ("updated code now active") without blame.

C. Delete the post and warn the team in CAPS.

👉 B is correct because it mitigates fault—you fix the issue, preserve the junior's dignity (private coaching), and post a neutral public correction

10 points

Today's Discussion

Why Carnegie's
Advice Still Matters

PART 1
Essentials of Engagement

PART 2
Six Ways to Make a
Lasting Impression

PART 3
How to Merit and
Maintain Others' Trust

PART 4
How to Lead Change
Without Resistance or Resentment

QnA

Is there any questions?

Deck Presentation | 2025

CONFIDENTIAL FOR LIMITED PARTIES Please do not distribute this presentation or any component of this presentation to any 3rd party without written consent.

“You can make more friends in two months by becoming interested in other people than you can in two years by trying to get other people interested in you”

~Dale Carnegie~

Deck Presentation | 2025

CONFIDENTIAL FOR LIMITED PARTIES Please do not distribute this presentation or any component of this presentation to any 3rd party without written consent

KERJA KERAS
NO

KERJA CER-DIAS
YES

Deck Presentation | 2025

CONFIDENTIAL FOR LIMITED PARTIES Please do not distribute this presentation or any component of this presentation to any 3rd party without written consent.

CONTACT INFO

irvandiassanjaya

irvandiassanjaya@gmail.com / kerjacerdias@gmail.com

Irvandias Sanjaya

irvandiassanjaya

Kerjacerdias

Deck Presentation | 2025

CONFIDENTIAL FOR LIMITED PARTIES Please do not distribute this presentation or any component of this presentation to any 3rd party without written consent.